WASHINGTON HOTEL.—The subscriber having leased the House in the occupation of Mr. Jas. Adams, respectfully recommends it to the public as a first rate House of entertainment. He is also prepared to accommodate families or single gentlemen with private rooms, and with the best the city market affords. The House has been thoroughly repaired and refurnished throughout, and no pains will be spared to render it worthy the public patronage.

June 4th. JOHN DELANEY.

NATIONAL HOTEL,
SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS.

JONAS WHITNEY, respectfully informs the public that he has taken the above House for the ensuing year, and that no pains will be spared to render it pleasant to accommodate his boarders and travellers on reasonable terms. The rooms of the house have been thoroughly repaired and refurnished, and no pains, now or hereafter, will be spared to render it a pleasant, comfortable, and agreeable stopping place, as heretofore, for all persons favoring him with their custom.

The stables attached to the House have been also put in complete repair and in the hands of a careful and attentive hostler.

The subscriber intends to please, if care and gentlemanly attention can please, and hopes by prompt attention to business, and moderate charges, to receive a liberal share of public patronage. Five passengers when in his coach will be taken to and from the steamboat landing, and he hopes to merit that patronage again.

State Register,

SPRINGFIELD:

Friday, September 16, 1842.

The collection of the State revenue in specie funds.

Let every tax payer keep in mind the fact, that the late proclamation of the Governor requires payments to be in specie. It prevents the receiving of treasurers bank paper on part agent of the specie tax for the year 1842.

The taxes for the year present have never heretofore been paid until the year following. The taxes for 1842 will not be collected until next year. In the mean time the Legislature may meet, and that body has the power to relieve the taxes one-fifth in amount, and provide for their collection in specie funds if they shall think it proper to do so. There would, in such case, be no difference in the amount paid by the tax payer. Fifteen cents on each hundred dollars assessed per year would be no more than 30 cents, (the present tax) paid in State Bank paper now.

Sound policy requires that the State revenue should be collected in specie, or its equivalent. How can our people hope to get rid of the present debased and unrelated paper currency, if they refuse to legislate for it by taking the public revenue payable in it? The experience of every State in the Confederacy has shown that whatever currency that State receives and pays out at its Treasury, will be the circulating currency of the State. The Treasury has credit nothing the controversy of depreciated bank paper, and the State will be the people themselves, through their Representatives in the Legislature.

We consider the action of the next Legislature on this subject as of the very highest importance. We have now a Governor who is sound as to Bank paper. The Federal party will be in power. A new Legislature is to meet, in all probability, in favor of the Banks and their depreciated paper currency, and the effect will probably be made by the party backed by the managers of an effort to borrow up these rotten concerns by legislation, and continue this paper among us to the principal circulating medium. Such a course would be the most base policy. The first great step, safely for the State Treasury against the evils of Banks—is collect what revenue we do collect in sound currency. Let the people see that the taxes are reduced, let them be collected in good money. No matter how low the salaries of the public officers may be, gold and silver be paid in good money.

There are few men now the leaders in developing the Executive officers for issuing their bank promissory notes, as money, and receiving them—men whose fortunes have long ago been made over and over again, and the more—men whose sole aim is money—who, when they get it, care not how they get money, and who when they get up in the morning, address no supplication to their God, excepting Bank stock—men to whom annual sacrifices and bad and bad—they paying bank paper worth but 40 cents on the dollar, and receiving afterwards from the success of the bank, specie, in full, and a handsome profit on their bank stock.

What a glorious business these bank stockholders have made of it! Let the people of the State a rascal the Governor must be, to disturb these fellows!

But, O, says Simple Sam, and his rascally backers, "you will injure the Banks, if you don't take their paper in the taxes." Does your State owe the Bank? and how dare you refuse to take her property? It is clear that Mr. Coons mingle the Treasury and the Bank together. They do not look upon the public revenue as a fund hereof for the support of Government, but as a fund levied for the benefit of the Banks and the Coon money shakers were here last year. We have the facts in meeting. Not a step was taken, or a resolution offered by the whigs which did not have for its object the appropriation of State Bank assets and money to the Banks. Not a word, or a single deserted character of their manufacturers of public sentiment!

Every body remembers, when the Banks suspended specie payments in 1837, how promptly and liberally the whigs in power voted to allow the public revenue to be collected in their paper. The difference between Bank paper and specie, at that time, was very trifling—not six per cent.—yet small as it was, it was considered by the whigs in power, even as quite sufficient to justify him in keeping the Government out of its dues. The difference now is not far be country, that he did so.—Yet, then, the whigs were not the party who denounced him for thus keeping the public funds unemployed, and so strongly committed Protest of the President.

To the Heads of Representatives

By the Constitution of the United States, it is provided that "every bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the President of the United States; and he shall approve it, he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it with his objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large upon the journal, and proceed to reconsider it."

In strict compliance with the positive obligations thus imposed upon me by the Constitution, on having been able to bring myself to approve a bill which originated in the House of Representatives, entitled "an act to provide for the collection of duties on imports and tonnage during a temporary limit, and for other purposes," I returned the same to the House, with my objections to it becoming a law. Those objections, which had recently assisted in my own mind at the same opinion, if not the unconstitutionality, of the measure, were presented in the most respectful and even deferential terms. I would therefore have supposed that the House would in the first case experience all the forbearance to which I considered it entitled, and that, at least, the objections which I had urged against the bill would be heard with candor and attention. Instead of this, however, the House, in a manner unprecedented in the annals of legislation, refused to receive my objections at all, and, without a single moment's delay, proceeded to pass the bill over the head of the President, and in defiance of the Constitution, which requires that the objections of the President shall be entered upon the journal of the House, and that the House shall proceed to reconsider the bill, before it can become a law.

Of the reasons and feelings in relation to myself and course of conduct adopted by me in the performance of this duty I have nothing to say. This subject matter is much in the hands of the House of Representatives, and I am willing that it should remain there. I am sorry that this course has been taken. I would have preferred, and still prefer, to have had the bill, which I considered and returned as objectionable, passed into a law, than to have had the House of Representatives, in a case of this kind, set at open defiance the Constitution, and the President. I am sorry that the House should have considered it necessary to take this course, because I am sorry that the public interests should have been subjected to the hazard of suffering from the delay, which must attend the passage of the bill, vetoed, over the veto of

NEW YORK STORE.

BIDDLE & SMITH'S have received their Spring and Summer stock of goods, which they offer wholesale and retail for the public to call and examine.

They pledge themselves to sell goods as low as can be purchased in this market.

Country merchants will find it to their interest to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere, as we are determined that it shall be to our interest to sell goods low for cash or approved paper.

Call and see for yourselves.

Official and wonderful!

THE Secretary of State of Illinois, in his address before the Agricultural Society, says that the yield of wheat in this State, in 1861, was 23,000,000 bushels, and that the average yield per acre was 15 bushels.

Putting all kinds of gamesters for once on the same footing, we will say that we have 23,000,000 bushels of

Choice unbolted and Saint Louis super extra to exchange for Wheat, and produce taken by work is not excluded.

SLAD STUN—Secretary of secret salesman and Agricultural Society.
